Infrastructure Update

Huu-ay-aht First Nation's strategic priority of building more housing and infrastructure for citizens is becoming a reality. The Nation has been working very hard and has made progress with the many projects we have on the go.

A Huu-ay-aht culture centre will be located across from the Anacla Government office, with the possibility of a community garden or dog park. We are also working on a new 5,000 square foot maintenance building which will help with the currently limited amount of storage space in Anacla. We have also created a new road that will circulate through the newly

Huu-ay-aht First Nation plans on creating up to nine more lots for citizens to lease and could start building soon. The project's goal is to provide utilities and be completed by Fall 2022. The Nation is also switching homes in Upper Anacla from septic systems to sewer as the wastewater treatment plant is getting close to completion

The community field is in the early stages of construction. Proper drainage is a consideration and is being addressed in the construction so that the field may be used through most weather conditions.

Another important consideration has been housing for contractors while on site. Options may include travel trailer sites with hookups provided.

In keeping with our environmental stewardship on our territory, the Nation will minimize negative environmental impacts, including saving the stream and as many trees as possible, and leaving the tree barrier as protection from wind and weather.
